ADVENTURE ADD-ON

Lagoon of Szczecin – The Lagoon of the Odra River between Germany and Poland, separated from the Pomeranian Gulf by the Islands of Usedom and Wolin. The canal, approximately 12 km long and ten meters deep, was dug by the German Empire between 1874 and 1880, during the reign of the Kaiser Wilhelm to improve the waterway linking Szczecin with the Baltic Sea. During the work the eastern part of the island of Usedom was cut off, giving birth to small island of Karsibor. In 1931 four pairs of large navigation beacons were set to mark the waterway.

Swinoujscie – a popular spa resort the only town in Poland situated on the sea islands. The biggest ones are Usedom and Wolin, but there are over 40 smaller islands, of which the largest is Karsibor island, once part of Usedom, now separated by a canal dug in the 19th century. Karsiborska Kepa, an island near the town, is bird sanctuary – home to approximately 140 bird species. True highlight of the town is the lighthouse, built in 1858, at 68 m being the highest lighthouse of the Polish coast with the light range of almost 46 kilometers. Next to the lighthouse is the Eastern Fort, or Gerhard's Fort, one of the three preserved forts from the 19th century.
